Local Mademoiselle heads for top of worldwide Google. Attention Business Owners.

Creating e-threads on the internet for business, no matter where you are, is vital in today's marketing mix when it comes to advertising your business. elocal does just this with the majority of their customer base.

During this last week, Pukekohe business Mademoiselle reaped the rewards of e-thread success by occupying Number One place for a Google New Zealand search and a staggering Number Four search result Worldwide from 11 million Google search results - keyword Mademoiselle. Mykeljon, Editor and elocal originator says "these results are fantastic. That means that Mademoiselle of Pukekohe is ahead of all but three other web sites in New York and London and across the world. This is a better result than that scored by most advertising agencies. Companies literally pay six figure sums to get results like this and we charge from only $45. Every business should take advantage of what elocal has to offer. Elocal's system of Search Engine Optimization is unique, giving its clients a distinct advantage when advertising their products and services." Karen Alexander-Bright of Mademoiselle says she is just overwhelmed by the results achieved by elocal. "Who would have thought that little old Pukekohe would receive such attention. It's humbling, and shows that it doesn't matter where you are, when your business is advertised online. We will be organising products online on www.elocal.co.nz so people can shop online from Mademoiselle."

Waiuku Museum up there with top players.

Waiuku Museum Society was among the finalists in the Exhibition/Visitor Achievement Award section of the inaugural Museums-Aotearoa Awards, presented in Dunedin. The award, won by Whanganui Regional Museum, was established to acknowledge the excellent work and creativity going on behind the scenes in the country's museums, public art galleries, science centres and historical societies. The finalist award was received for the Waiuku Museum Society by Judith Hull.

"We are proud to be recognised among such distinguished company, many of which, as regional and national importance, have considerably more resources and financial assistance than we have," said Judith.
